

Application for barbecuing on campus

Please submit your application by email to Akademiska Hus at least ten working days before the planned barbecue. You will receive a response via email no later than three working days prior to the event. Before submitting your application, please read the information below carefully.

BARBECUE EQUIPMENT

Grilling is only allowed on equipment specifically designed for barbecuing.

BARBECUE PLACEMENT

There are no permanent barbecue areas available at Stockholm University. It is therefore essential to place the barbecue on a flat and non-combustible surface, at least one metre away from flammable materials such as buildings or vegetation.

The barbecue must also be elevated from the ground and placed on a fireproof base to prevent the spread of fire. Make sure that smoke does not reach the air intakes of our buildings.

FIRE SAFETY EQUIPMENT

Always ensure access to water, a fire extinguisher or other fire-fighting equipment near the barbecue in order to handle any potential fire quickly. Keep a phone close at hand in case you need to call for emergency assistance.

SUPERVISION DURING BARBECUING

Never leave a lit barbecue unattended. The person who lights the barbecue is responsible for safety throughout the entire barbecue session and for ensuring that the barbecue is properly extinguished afterwards.

CHOICE OF IGNITION METHOD

Use an electric lighter or other recommended firelighters. Do not use methylated spirits or similar fuels, as they can cause dangerous situations.

AFTER BARBECUING AND HANDLING OF CHARCOAL

After barbecuing, ensure that the charcoal is completely extinguished. Charcoal can retain heat and embers for up to three days, so it must be stored in a non-combustible container until it has fully cooled down.

The person responsible for the barbecue must make sure that all embers are properly extinguished and that the barbecue equipment and solid fuel are removed before leaving the site. The area must be restored to its original condition.

BE CONSIDERATE

Keep in mind that smoke and food odours may disturb others. Show consideration for your surroundings and choose a barbecue location that minimises disruption to others on campus. By following these guidelines, you contribute to a safe and pleasant barbecuing experience for everyone on campus.
